

VALLEY FRUIT MEN FORM ASSOCIATION

Organize Under Charter Recently Granted, and Will Work Together for Mutual Interest.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
BASIC CITY, VA., July 18.—The stockholders of the Shenandoah Valley Fruit Growers' Association, Inc., met at Hotel Belmont here on Thursday, adopted their charter recently granted by the State Corporation Commission, elected officers, adopted by-laws and further completed the organization to handle the fruit crop. The Eastern Shore of Virginia Produce Exchange, of Onley, Va., which has had such a phenomenally successful career, was taken as a model in conjunction with the Fruit Growers' Association, of Hood River, Ore. No doubt the opportunity for the success of this association is just as bright. The main objects of the association are to encourage its members to grow the very best fruit possible by thorough cultivation, fertilizing and spraying to control codling-moth (worm in the apple), insect and other fungous troubles, and to so grade and pack this fruit that it will bring the very best prices the market will afford. A special effort is to be made to put up a fancy brand of boxed apples. This stock should be equal to apples sold in this country, and after the brand is well established, should sell as high.

All fruit growers and others interested in this industry are invited to join the association. The by-laws provide for a president and five directors, representative of important divisions of the valley.
W. A. McComb, Arbor Hill, Augusta county, is president. Robert J. Roanoke and the Southwestern representative of the directors by J. J. Moomaw, of Cloverdale, Augusta; Rockbridge, Alleghany, etc., by B. E. Watson, of Staunton; Shenandoah and Rockingham by J. H. Pifer, of Strasburg; Frederick and Clarke by C. C. Crawford, of Warren; George Rappahannock and Fauquier, by J. L. Phillips.

The secretary, J. L. Lucien Moomaw, of Cloverdale, has expressed his willingness to accept the position and to persons interested in the work of the association.

What is a Watt?
In the electrical world one hears and reads a great deal about "watts." The current is measured by watts; the machinery is rated by watts; lamps burn by watts. To the ordinary layman all this talk of "watts" is as mystifying as the death of the late Emperor of Swat.

The man to whom we owe the idea of the horse-power was a Scottish inventor, James Watt, and when the electric unit involving the idea of working capacity came to be formulated, the name of Watt was chosen to indicate this unit, just as that of Volta has given us the term volt and Faraday the farad.

Watt considered that taking the average of a London day, horse power is capable of doing the work of lifting 33,000 pounds through one foot of distance in one minute of time, against gravity. The introduction of this time limit, the minute, gave the unit of power or the rate of performing work. This or its equivalent has ever since been called a horse-power.

The electrical unit called the watt is capable of being represented in terms of the horse-power, and in that form it is perhaps more intelligible to those who are familiar with mechanical rather than with electrical expressions. The electrical watt is the product of volts multiplied by amperes, where the volt is the unit of electrical pressure and the ampere is the unit measuring the current or volume of an electrical current.

Careful experiments have demonstrated that 746 watts per second are equal to 550 foot-pounds per second, or, to state the equation in its usual form, 746 watts equal one horse-power. The form in which electrical power is generally sold is computed on the basis of kilowatt-hours. The prefix kilo comes from the Greek Chilioi—one thousand. A kilowatt, written also k. w., is therefore 1,000 watts. The kilowatt hour is the performance of work at such a rate that 1,000 watts per second shall be delivered continuously for one hour.

The kilowatt-hour has a special interest for the man who has his office or house lighted by electric lamps, because the kilowatt-hour is the unit upon which the power and light companies base their charges.

Officials of the light and power department of the Passenger and Power Company will gladly give information concerning amperes, kilowatts and kilowatt-hours, as on this basis all charges for electricity are estimated.

Chestnut Gelding, foaled 1907, by Sidney Prince, dam Miss Collins, by Alexander, a great sire of race winners. This is a high class yearling. He shows a rare turn of speed in the paddock and will make a trotter.

Chestnut Gelding, pacer, foaled 1906, by Sidney Prince, sire of Prince M., 2:13 1/4, and twenty-five others in the list. This gelding has been pacing less than four weeks, but can show miles around 2:30, with fractions at a runaway clip. Weans quarter boots only.
